Marchers mob streets in Tehran

TEHRAN, Nov. 4 (Agencies) — Hundreds of thousands of Iranians shouting "death to American imperialism" marched on the U.S. Embassy in Tehran Tuesday, and Iran's foreign ministry asked the administration of U.S. President Jimmy Carter for a quick response to its demands for the release of the 52 U.S. hostages, beginning their second year in captivity.

In another major development Tuesday, Iranian Prime Minister Muhammad Ali Rajai said the government has not yet taken over full responsibility for the hostages from the Islamic militants.

"We will assume the responsibility of keeping them," he said in a brief interview broadcast by Tehran radio. Asked whether the transfer of the hostages had actually been carried out yet, Rajai replied: "We have not yet done it."

Meanwhile, Iraq claimed Tuesday a whole Iranian brigade was "massacred" while trying to break out from an Iraqi siege of the Iranian major oil refining city of Abadan.

Iraq said 300 dead Iraqi soldiers were rotting near the southwestern Iranian army garrison town of Dezful and Iraqi shellfire was prohibiting Iran's Red Crescent teams from burying the victims and averting an epidemic.

The claims underscored escalating fighting in Iran's southern oil province of Khuzestan on the 44th day of the war on the northern fringe of the Gulf.

As Iran claimed Abadan's defenders drove back nightlong Iraqi assaults to punch into the city's northern and eastern gates, Iraq's defense minister Adnan Khairallah announced the "brigade massacre" in an interview with Iraq's daily newspaper Al Thawra.

"It was a foolish attempt to try to break from the siege," said Khairallah. "They got themselves annihilated."

The Baghdad communique said 56 Iranian troops were killed and one tank, one armored personnel carrier and one observation post were destroyed in 12 hours of fighting from Monday evening to Tuesday morning.

The communique conceded 16 Iraqi soldiers killed, and one bulldozer and eight military vehicles destroyed in the southern sector fighting on the northern brink of the Gulf. Communique from both sides indicate the Iraqis are trying to punch into Abadan from the north, east and south to take Iran's last stronghold on the embattled Shatt Al Arab waterway and the pre-war source of 60 per cent of its refined oil.

Begin planning Washington visit

JERUSALEM, Nov. 4 (AFP) — Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin will meet in the United States next week with the winner of Tuesday's United States presidential elections, sources close to the premier's office confirmed Tuesday.

Begin is going on Nov. 9 to speak at a banquet given by U.S. Zionist leaders to commemorate the 100th birthday of the late Vladimir Zeev Jabotinsky, who spearheaded demands in the 1930s for a Jewish state in Palestine.

U.S. prepared to plunge into Gulf war talks

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (WP) — The Carter Administration, increasingly concerned about the failure of efforts to achieve a cease-fire in the Iran-Iraq war, is preparing to take a much more active and visible role marshaling international opinion to put pressure on the two feuding Gulf neighbors.

Reliable sources said last weekend that a shift in U.S. tactics is likely to become evident immediately after Tuesday's presidential election. At that time, the sources added, the United States can be expected to spearhead a drive in the U.N. Security Council for a resolution capable of putting an end to the fighting (SPA photo) WELCOME: King Khalid received hundreds of well-wishers at his palace in Riyadh the last few days since his return from Jeddah. As is customary with him and other leaders, he remained standing throughout the mass audience, not sitting down to talk to his visitors until the last one of them had greeted him.

Computer training part of current development

RIYADH, Nov. 4 (SPA) — Planning Minister Sheikh Hisham Nazer said that the current five-year development plan laid special emphasis on the training of Saudi Arabians for the operation and maintenance of computers. By the end of the plan, he said, the government will have trained an adequate number of men for this highly specialized job.

Nazer was addressing the sixth national seminar on the computer here Tuesday. He said that already many government departments were using computers as a matter of course. "Our need for specialists in this field is clear," he said.

Speaking on the occasion, the Chancellor of Riyadh University Dr. Mansour Al Turki said that 70 per cent of the research papers submitted to the seminar were prepared by Saudi Arabian universities and that Riyadh University alone was responsible for 40 per cent of them.

A member of the university faculty of engineering, Yusuf Muhammad Ajan, said this year's topic will deal with the "ultimate beneficiary or user" of the computer while the seminar will also discuss a number of research papers dealing with applications and programming. Five American professors are taking part in the seminar at the invitation of Riyadh University, he said.

A special exhibit center showing some of the products of 25 computer manufacturing companies will give the participants an idea of the equipment available for sale to the Kingdom. Documentary films will show them the latest in technology and uses of some of the computers now being produced.

Texas University professor Dr. Simon said he expected that every body will soon have an opportunity to own their own individual computers on account of the massive strides being made in this field and the many uses that they can offer.

Dr. Ahmad Nasser of the faculty of sciences explained the objects of the seminar and gave details of its program which continues until Thursday.

Gold prices rise; dollar rates mixed

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP) — Gold prices rose in Europe Tuesday just before voting began in the U.S. presidential election, while the dollar was mixed in quiet trading.

One gold dealer in London said the market expected the winner, whether President Carter or Ronald Reagan, to stimulate the U.S. economy, which would mean lowering interest rates, a bullish signal for gold.

London's five bullion houses agreed a morning gold "fix" of 648 a troy ounce, up from 641 late Monday. In Zurich, gold sold at noon for a median $648.50 up from $637.50. Earlier in Hong Kong, gold rose $12.02 to close at $ 646.67.

Silver was quoted in London at $19.83 an ounce, up from $19.25.

Foreign exchange interest was centered on the British pound, which is at a seven-year high against the dollar. The pound gained another cent on the U.S. currency in early trading to $2.4520, from $2.4425, late Monday, following overnight strength in New York, buoyed by the attractions of Britain's high interest rates and North Sea oil.

Karmal leaves Moscow for Kabul

MOSCOW, Nov. 4 (Agencies) — Afghan President Babrak Karmal departed for home Tuesday after an extended official visit, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

Karmal was staying in the Soviet Union "for a brief rest and a course of treatment" following his official visit Oct. 16-24 for talks with President Leonid Brezhnev.

Karmal heads the Kabul government that took power last December in a Soviet-backed coup that led to the stationing of an estimated 85,000 Soviet soldiers in the central Asian country.

He was being treated in a Soviet clinic for "general exhaustion," an Afghan source revealed here Monday.

Karmal went into a hospital in the Moscow suburbs reserved for foreigners on Oct. 25, the day after he was scheduled to return to Kabul, but his conditions were not causing concern, the source said.

Carter, Reagan square off Hostage drama blankets election

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) — Their long, sometimes bitter campaign over, President Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan are reduced to the role of average citizen Tuesday, on the first anniversary of the takeover of the U.S. Embassy in Iran, they could only vote and wait.

Carter was returning to his plains, Ga. home to cast his ballot, and Reagan was at his oceanfront house in Los Angeles.

After months of Reagan's harping on Carter's handling of the economy and the president's hints that Reagan could start a war, the final days of their campaign were dominated by swiftly moving events in Tehran that encouraged speculation that the ordeal of the 52 American hostages soon may end.

No one could say how those events would affect the outcome of the presidential race, and the candidates reacted cautiously.

"Don't know yet," was the president's response on Monday when asked if he was encouraged by the news that the Iranian militants holding the hostages had agreed to relinquish custody to the Iranian government.

Referring to the hostages in an election-eve address for which his campaign purchased time on the three television networks, Reagan said, "Like you there is nothing I want more than their safe return — that they be returned with their families after this long period of imprisonment."

Another unpredictable factor in the presidential race was independent candidate John B. Anderson, who insisted on Monday,

Saudi funds may finance Japan loans

TOKYO, Nov. 4 (AP) — A Japanese newspaper said that Saudi Arabia might make capital investments in Japan.

The newspaper, Yomiuri, said Monday that this desire was repeatedly expressed by Sheikh Abdul Aziz Al Quraishi, Governor of the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency (SAMA), equivalent to the central bank, during his talks in Tokyo the last few days with Japanese officials.

Al Quraishi also held talks with Finance Minister Michio Watanabe, Governor Haruo Mayekawa of the Bank of Japan and 16 leading commercial banks and securities houses.

The amount of potential Saudi Arabian investment in Japan was not specified, but the paper said Al Quraishi proposed that his country purchase yen-based external loans, expand the sale of Japanese government bonds, and extend the current remaining life of Japanese government bonds that the country is purchasing from three to five years.

Officials at the finance ministry declined to comment on the deal, but the paper quoted Japanese government and financial leaders as saying that Saudi Arabia might be willing to recycle "a certain portion of its money."

Japan depends on the Kingdom for 26.9 per cent of its oil needs.

The paper said that the influx of investments will help to further improve Japan's trade balance and stabilize the yen's exchange rate against foreign currencies.

Other permanent members of the Security Council — the Soviet Union as well as U.S. allies such as Britain and France — have their own reasons for avoiding the kind of role that could endanger their relations with either Iran or Iraq.

As a result, the sources said, the administration reluctantly has concluded that, once the presidential election is decided, the United States will have no choice other than to give immediate priority to trying to step in and take command of the drive for a cease-fire.

Reagan wins ... in Dixville Notch

DIXVILLE NOTCH, New Hampshire, Nov. 4 (Agencies) — This mountain village voted overwhelmingly for Republican candidate Ronald Reagan early Tuesday before polling stations opened in the rest of the United States.

Seventeen villagers just after midnight voted for Reagan and only three for President Jimmy Carter. Two others cast ballots for independent candidate, John Anderson and one for Libertarian candidate Ed Clark, who advocates doing away with most governmental agencies.

One villager put a blank vote in the ballot box.

The community is anything but a trend-setter. Since 1960, Dixville Notch has voted for the loser in every presidential election except 1972, when voters favored Richard Nixon 16-3 over George McGovern.

By Council of Ministers

Overseas study policies reaffirmed

RIYADH, Nov. 4 (SPA) — The Council of Ministers reiterated that only students specializing in rare fields can be sent to complete their studies abroad. In the meantime, more efforts should be made to ensure at Saudi universities the teaching of all study specializations.

A two-and-a-half hour meeting under Second Deputy Premier and Commander of the National Guard Prince Abdullah also expressed its satisfaction with the way the country's Third Five-Year Development Plan was being implemented after a briefing by Planning Minister Sheikh Hisham Nazer.

Cabinet spokesman Dr. Muhammad Abdo Yamani, information minister, said that Justice Minister Ibrahim ibn Muhammad Al Sheikh reported to the Cabinet on the steps his ministry intends to take to reduce administrative formalities and develop the functions of tribunals while raising their efficiency.

Dr. Yamani said that Monday's Cabinet decisions will be submitted to the King for approval and ratification.

In Jeddah, members of the board of the Diplomatic Studies Institute visited the institute Monday. They were met by its director Dr. Muhammad Omar Medani and other officials.

Earlier in the day, Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al-Faisal presided over a board meeting to discuss ways of developing the institute's programs.

The institute was first opened last year here and "in this short span, has already done very well," according to Prince Saud. Another meeting was being held Tuesday to draw up plans for training courses of all kinds related to the diplomatic service.

The delegation that visited the institute

Monday included Sheikh Abdullah Alireza and Sheikh Abdul Rahman Mansour, deputies to the foreign minister for economic affairs and political affairs respectively; Sheikh Jamil Al-Hagalah, the Kingdom's ambassador to Paris; Sheikh Samir Al-Shehaby, ambassador to Pakistan; Sheikh Ziad Al-Shawa, ambassador to the Netherlands, and Ambassador Sheikh Ahmad

Charities receive welfare donations

HASA, Nov. 4 (SPA) — The Hasa philanthropic Society received SR108,500 in donations, officials announced. In addition, the Eastern Province Welfare Society received more than SR500,000 from different donors.

The gifts to the Hasa group included SR30,000 from Sheikh Abdul Aziz Abdullah Al-Moussa; SR 20,000 from Sheikh Abdullah Abdul Mohsen Al-Khedri; SR10,000 from Sheikh Saleh Muhammad Al-Ruwattee; SR10,000 Riyadh Bank's Hofuf Branch and SR10,000 from Sheikh Fahd Al-Abdullah Al-Owaidah.

Donations to the Welfare Society include SR100,000 from Prince Sultan bin Abdul Aziz; SR250,000 from an anonymous donor through the department of justice; SR75,000 from Sheikh Abdul Aziz ibn Muhammad Al-Arifi; SR30,000 from Shabib Trading Establishment in Dammam.

Prince Muhammad bin Fahd Al-Jilawi, Hasa governor and Society chairman, thanked all the donors and subscribers for their charitable act to the Hasa Philanthropic Society.

Abdul Jabbar, the Kingdom's representative to the United Nations European headquarters in Geneva.

During the visit, they were briefed on the institute's various activities and toured the public library and the study library for which they expressed their admiration.

The institute provides morning and afternoon courses both for full-timers and part-timers. There are approximately 150 students of both categories studying at the institute. They graduate between six months and two years. They study English, typing, short-hand, economics, Saudi history, research, international law, international relations and world affairs and political science. The institute also sends some of its graduates abroad for higher studies.

In other developments, Planning Minister Sheikh Hisham Nazer and Riyadh University Rector Dr. Mansour Al-Turki opened the sixth national conference on computers in Riyadh Tuesday. The minister presented a study on computers that comprised 40 reports.

An exhibition will be held during the conference at which 25 firms dealing in computers will display their products. The conference will also show documentary films about the computer tape development and its various uses. Three committees — the preparatory committee; the research, programming and editing committee; and the recording committee — comprising officials from the Kingdom's universities, government departments and companies marketing computer products in the Kingdom are managing the conference.

The conference's motto is "the end user is the key to the successful use of computers."

To meet Chamber of Commerce and Industry

Argentine mission to make three-day visit

JEDDAH, Nov. 4 — A commercial mission from Argentina, sponsored by the Argentine government, is due to arrive here on Monday, November 10, for a three day visit aimed at making contacts with Saudi representatives and importers.

The delegation comprises eleven Argentine companies specializing in frozen meats and their technology, animal fodder, dairy products and technology, farm technology, medicines and medical drugs, turn-key cold store projects, aluminium structures, agricultural machinery, gas and oil pipe insulation and coating, tea and yerba mate, tea-packing machinery, and banking. The Argentine businessmen will meet with officials of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of Jeddah and with a number of private Saudi businessmen.

Arrangements are organized by the Commercial Section of the Argentine Embassy in Jeddah.

It will be remembered that Dr. Solaim, minister of commerce, called on the Saudi private sector to pay more attention to the Argentine market as an alternative supplier of agriculture products and technology. He visited Argentina last July, as well as Dr. Abdul Rahman Al-Sheikh, minister of agriculture and water who visited Argentina in 1979.

Argentine experts are collaborating with the Kingdom's authorities in the development of studies on cattle, sheep and goats production, breeding, and utilization, as a result of an agreement signed in Riyadh last April, during the visit of the Argentine Agriculture Minister, Mr. Zorreguieta, to this country.

Argentina is currently the second biggest supplier of frozen meat to the Kingdom. It also exports to Jeddah fresh fruits, cereals and grains, rice, foodstuffs, as well as iron and steel bars, seamless steel pipes, electricity meters, computer parts, tool-machinery, pumps and valves.

Conexpo '81

Exhibitors expect increased Saudi attendance

By Jeannette Garrett
Houston Bureau

ON, Nov. 4 — Organizers of the International Construction Exposition, are expecting an increase of Saudi delegates, as the 1980 show was the last consecutive years ago.

Arabians expected at the exposition of government ministries and public works.

is the world's largest privately-sponsored trade show, Conexpo '81 will be held at the Astrodom in Houston, January 25-30. While construction equipment will draw attendance to Conexpo, according to Ralph E. Keidel, the show's general chairman, attendees will be coming for more than a chance to view $500 million ($R1.6 billion) worth of equipment. "Those 100,000 construction industry attendees will also be looking for help with their problems and ways to achieve it."

As Keidel sees it, the world's construction industry faces the same dilemmas as other industries — rising inflation and over-regulation, both of which make it harder to earn a profit. He believes Conexpo '81 will give representatives of the construction industry the chance to compare techniques and equipment usage with contractors and others from all over the world and an opportunity to draw on the wealth of ancillary information available from the show's 230 exhibitors.

Conexpo visitors will learn about the services that manufacturers offer to increase equipment productivity and to inspect equipment. These services include preven-five maintenance programs, economic and special technical studies and training for operators and mechanics. Most of these services are offered at no charge, but many are overlooked.

United States manufacturers and contractors face a mature domestic market which shows few signs of significant growth, Conexpo officials say. Less restrictive mining legislation may provide some relief, but nothing major is in sight. These conditions have brought about a need for sharp bidding and a need for greater productivity on existing jobs.

Once all the exhibits are assembled at the astrodom, they will cover an area of 800,000 square feet (72,000 square meters). "Getting the show put together takes almost three years of full-time effort, but his is a 'can-do' industry," said Keidel. "We design and manufacture machines we thought were impossible, and contractors take them to the ends of the world to build highways, dams, buildings, airports and mine the world's resources where not even the most rudimentary road exists. This show is in keeping with the industry's 'can-do' attitudes."

Bonnet departs
JEDDAH, Nov. 4 (SPA) — French Interior Minister Christian Bonnet left here for his country Monday concluding a four-day official visit to the Kingdom. Bonnet signed a security cooperation agreement with Interior Minister Prince Naif during his stay. He was seen off at the airport by Prince Naif, Sheikh Abdul Rahman Al-Sudairi, Jeddah district commissioner, Dr. Ibrahim Al-Awaji, deputy interior minister, Gen. Abdullah Al-Sheikh, public security director, and Gen. Mansour Al-Sinaibi, Western Region commander.

Gen. Al-Sheikh arrival
DHAHRAN, Nov. 4 (SPA) — Public Security Director Gen. Abdullah Abdul Rahman Al-Sheikh arrived here Monday evening on a two-day inspection visit of the Eastern Province. He will inspect police installations and consider their development.

Sanaa relations discussed
SANAA, Nov. 4 (SPA) — North Yemen's Vice President Abdul Aziz Abdul Ghani discussed Tuesday the fostering of bilateral relations with Saudi Ambassador Sheikh Trad Al-Harethi. The ambassador also was received Tuesday by Qazi Ali Al-Samman, the minister of endowments, and Dr. Ahmad Al-Asbahi, the minister of education about the same subject.

Pakistani beheaded
MECCA, Nov. 4 (SPA) — A Pakistani was beheaded here Tuesday for the killing of another man. A statement by the Interior Ministry said that Abdul Ghafoor Abdul Shakoor Hussein, a Pakistani national, had killed in the outskirts of Mecca Abdul Aziz Muhammad Abdo Rabi'e, but the statement did not disclose the reason for the killing. It recalled however that the government strikes with an iron fist on the hands of anyone playing havoc with the country's security and implements the Sharia.

The meeting will also discuss the draft of the Bank's Fifth Annual Report and review the Bank's activities this year. It will also consider the draft agenda of the fifth session of the IDE Board of Governors scheduled to be held in Sudan during Rabi-ul-Thani.

UAE military group inspects bases

ABHA, Nov. 4 (SPA) — A visiting delegation from Zayed bin Sultan Al-Thani Military Academy in the United Arab Emirates toured Al-Souda area in Abha.

The delegation of officers and cadets arrived in the Southern Province earlier Monday and visited King Khaled Air Base and other armed forces installations there.

It also visited the hospital at King Faisal Military Cantonment and was briefed on health services provided to the Saudi military. After touring the cantonment, the visitors had dinner with Commander of the Southern Province, Maj. Gen. Yusuf Abdul Rahman Al-Rashed.

Iraq leader meets Prince Talal

BAGHDAD, Nov. 4 (SPA) — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein received Prince Talal ibn Abdul Aziz, assistant U.N. secretary general for the United Nations International Children Emergency Fund, Monday.

Prince Talal arrived Sunday on a short visit to Iraq for talks regarding the backing of the fund's activities.

Scout camp ends activity in Buraidah

BURAIDAH, Nov. 4 (SPA) — A boy scout camp that served pilgrims here during Hajj season wound up ceremoniously Monday under the auspices of Qasim Governor Prince Abdul Ilah at the successful completion of its work.

The governorate, the education directorate, the municipality and a number of government departments contributed to the camp, which rendered valuable services to some 150,000 pilgrims who came by road from the Gulf.

While the national Guard participated with large numbers during Hajj through the use of military and technical school cadre, the Saudi Arabian Scout Association also was able to provide assistance. Pilgrims were given help by 1,300 scouts. The scouts helped lost pilgrims return to their groups. The scout association coordinated their efforts with the Ministry of pilgrimage and Endowments and the Ministry of Health in leading lost children to centers set up for the first time this year to handle such emergencies. In addition, the Health Ministry had appointed nurses to comfort the lost children.

Prince Abdul Ilah also approved a request by Sulaiman Al Shallahs, head of the education directorate, to allocate a large land plot for the Pilgrim city in Buraidah.

Earlier, a similar ceremony was held in quwayys marking the end of the scout and pilgrims' city that served more than 93,000 pilgrims this year. The Emir of Quwayys, Sheikh Badr Al-Askar, attended the ceremony on behalf of Deputy Riyadh Governor Prince Sattam. More than 180 scouts and employees took part in the camp.

Israeli court postpones verdict on Arab mayors

TEL AVIV, Nov. 4 (Agencies) — Israel's supreme court failed Monday to reach a decision on the appeal of two Palestinian mayors from the occupied West Bank seeking permission to return from exile. As hundreds of Arabs demonstrated outside the stone courthouse, the three judges adjourned the hearing without setting a date for the verdict.

But a final decision on the appeals of Mayors Fahd Qawasmeh of Hebron and Muhammad Milhem of Halhoul was expected in a few days.

U.S. unveils revised plan for autonomy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (R) — The United States plans to send a diplomatic team to Israel and Egypt on Wednesday with a revised interim proposal for an agreement on Palestinian self-rule, U.S. officials have said.

An aide to U.S. Middle East negotiator Sol Linowitz said Monday the visit would go ahead whatever the result of the U.S. presidential election. Linowitz's Deputy James Leonard and aides Alan Kreczko and Ned Walker are expected to make up the U.S. team. They are to spend a day and a half in Israel before going on to Egypt.

The revised plan contains some significant changes from earlier U.S. proposals as a result of suggestions made by the Israeli and Egyptian negotiators in talks with Linowitz in mid-October.

"We took very seriously the suggestions of both sides," an official said but he added that the proposals did not amount to a change in U.S. policy.

Linowitz on Oct. 15 reported progress on several important issues in the 18-month-old autonomy talks and said he hoped agreement could be reached in further meetings.

As the two mayors were led to an Israeli police wagon to be driven back to prison outside Tel Aviv, a crowd of Arabs shouted "In blood and soul we will redeem you." The mayors waved to them but were locked in the police van without an opportunity to make statements.

It was the first time the two mayors had been seen in public since Oct. 14, when they were allowed to cross the Jordan River into the West Bank to appeal personally against the expulsion orders before an Israeli military panel. The review board ruled against the mayors, prompting the appeal to Israel's highest court.

Qawasmeh and Milhem, both staunch Palestinian nationalists and opponents of the plan for Palestinian autonomy, were expelled seven months ago following a commando attack that killed six Israelis in Hebron.

The three-hour hearing was devoted mainly to arguments by the defense that the mayors violated the Geneva Convention and the Jordanian law which applies in the West Bank.

Israel has claimed that the presence of the two mayors in the West Bank would incite disruptions of public order.

Security inside the courtroom was extraordinarily tight. When Milhem's wife tried to hand him a pack of cigarettes, an Israeli policeman seized it and carefully inspected its contents.

Meanwhile, Israeli military authorities have put three more Palestinian leaders under town arrest, raising the number of Arabs restricted to their towns in the West Bank to 33, officials said Tuesday.

The latest cases concerned Mayor of Kabatiyah, Muhammad Khaled, Palestinian trade union leader and Nablus city council member, Abdul Ghanem and former El Bireh councillor, Azmi Chuwebi.

All three belonged to the Lajnat al-Aunij al-Watani (National Guidance Council) which proclaims its allegiance to the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO).

Egypt condemns new settlements on West Bank

CAIRO, Nov. 4 (AP) — Egypt has condemned the establishment of two new Jewish settlements on the West Bank as "inconsistent" with current efforts for holding a Camp David-style summit to revive stalled Palestinian autonomy talks between the two countries.

The move also "contradicts the Israeli government's stand that stresses on the importance of continuing the self-rule negotiations," Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali was quoted as saying Monday.

Ali was reacting to the turning over Sunday of two new Jewish settlements to Israeli settlers. His comment was carried by the Middle East News Agency.

In condemning the Israeli measure, Ali reiterated Egypt's position that considers "establishing Jewish settlements on occupied Arab lands as "illegal" and a "violation of the spirit and letter of the Camp David accords."

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat suggested the summit with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and U.S. President Jimmy Carter to stimulate the autonomy talks he suspended in August.

Syria House okays treaty with USSR

DAMASCUS, Nov. 4 (Agencies) — The Syrian People's Council (parliament) has unanimously approved the treaty of friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union signed last month in Moscow by President Leomid Brezhnev and Syrian President Hafez Assad.

Syrian official sources said the treaty, which commits the two countries to consult if the security of either is threatened, would come into effect shortly.

Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam told the council Monday that most Arab countries had welcomed the treaty. Khaddam stressed the importance of bolstering cooperation between Syria and the Soviet Union. "This treaty will enhance Syria's nationalist role as well as the interests of the Arab masses vis-a-vis imperialism, Zionism and hostile designs," he said.

Meanwhile, the deputy chief of the Soviet Central Committee's bureau of foreign relations, Karen Brutens, arrived here Monday for a visit of several days at the invitation of the Syrian ruling Baath Party's inter-Arab command.

Another policeman slain in Istanbul

ISTANBUL, Nov. 4 (R) — Two gunmen killed a policeman in an Istanbul shantytown district on Monday, police said. He was the second policeman to be killed in a street attack in the last four days.

Three other persons were killed in two separate clashes with security forces Sunday in the eastern town of Artvin and near the western town of De Izi, Turkish newspapers reported Monday, quoting military authorities.

Turkey's military rulers have clamped down heavily on political violence since their Sept. 12 takeover and three guerrillas have been executed. Right and left-wing militants have continued to clash with security forces but far less often than before the coup.

Meanwhile, a delegation from West Germany's Social Democratic Party (SPD) on a mission to assess the military administration in Turkey, Monday met Foreign Minister Ilter Turkmen and former Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit.

Delegation sources said the SPD team, led by long-standing party member Ludwig Felbermaier, delivered a message from SPD leader Willy Brandt to Ecevit, but no details of the talks were given.

Numeiri opens OAU's trade fair

KHARTOUM, Nov. 4 (AP) — Sudanese President Jaafar Numeiri inaugurated Monday a 34-nation trade fair sponsored by the Organization of African Unity (OAU).

The first Khartoum-hosted trade fair embodies 150 wings exhibiting products of 750 African companies, according to a fair bulletin. Over 2,000 businessmen from all over the world are attending the two-week fair in addition to representatives of interested regional and international organizations.

Sudanese First Vice President Abdul Magid Khalil told the opening session that the fair is designed to strengthen trade and economic cooperation among African countries.

Some African trade ministers and the secretary-general of the OAU attended the opening ceremony.

General Assembly extends UNRWA mandate till 1988

UNITED NATIONS, Nov. 4 (AP) — The General Assembly has voted to extend to June 30, 1984, the life of the U.N. Relief and Works Agency for Palestine refugees, already 30 years and six months old. A resolution for that purpose recommended by the Assembly's Special Political Committee was adopted by a vote of 109-0 Monday. Israel abstained.

The resolution expressed deep regret that refugees of the 1948 Arab-Israeli war have not yet been afforded the choice of either going back to their homes in what is now Israel or else being paid off. Israel has declined to take many back.

UNRWA, as the agency is called, looks after 1.8 million refugees and offspring in Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and West Bank of the Jordan River. Its headquarters is in Vienna. Olof Rydbeck of Sweden is its commissioner-general.

Another resolution the Assembly adopted Monday appealed to all countries to give money for higher-education scholarships and grants to Palestine refugees. The vote was 109 for, with Israel against and the United States abstaining.

When that resolution was recommended by the Special Political Committee on Oct. 22, U.S. delegate Richard Patten of the United States abstained because it was bringing in the issue of Jerusalem. One of the committee's recommendations was to call for a study of "ways and means" of establishing at Jerusalem a university of sciences to cater to the needs of refugees in the area.

The United States and Canada abstained in voting against a third resolution the Special Committee that the Assembly adopted by a vote of 96-3 with 16 abstentions calling on Israel to take back refugees by the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The resolution contained a provision that the Assembly considered null and void "any and all agreements embodying restriction on or condition for the return of the displaced inhabitants."

Another resolution that went through the Assembly calls on Israel to stop Palestinian refugees from one place to another in the Gaza Strip and demand their shelters. The vote on it was 112 for, with Israel against and the United States and the Ivory Coast abstaining.

DOHA, Qatar, (R) — King Juan Carlos of Spain Tuesday left Doha after a one-day official visit, the first by a Spanish monarch to Qatar. The king held talks with the ruler Sheikh Khalifa Ben Hamad Al-Thani, on official strengthening bilateral relations, an official statement said.

KARACHI, (R) — Sheikh Rashid Ben Said Al-Maktoum, ruler of Dubai and Prime Minister of the United Arab Emirates, arrived here Monday for a 10-day unofficial visit to Pakistan, official sources said.

NEW HAVEN, Connecticut, (AP) — The

United States should base troops in the Middle East to make sure the Soviet Union doesn't shut off the flow of oil to the West, former Israeli Foreign Minister and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Monday. "You should make it clear that you will not allow the stop of the flow of that oil," Dayan said. "The U.S. is the only country that can stand up to the Soviet Union."

KARACHI, (AFP) — Ustad Hamid Hussain Khan, a well-known Sarangi-playing musician of the Indo-Pakistan subcontinent, died of a heart attack here Monday. He was 57.

AS A COMPANY WHICH IS COMMITTED TO THE DEVELOPMENT AND PROGRESS OF THE KINGDOM OF SAUDI ARABIA, FOLEY WOULD LIKE TO EMPHASISE TO OTHER CONTRACTORS AND CONSULTANTS THE IMPORTANCE OF THE FOLLOWING MINISTERIAL RESOLUTIONS RELATING TO THE ENCOURAGEMENT AND SUPPORT OF SAUDI INDUSTRY:

Resolution by the Council of Ministers
No. 377 Dated 18/4/1398

Contractors working for the Government are prohibited from importing goods similar to those manufactured locally.

(1) The Ministry of Industry and Electricity shall prepare every six months lists of locally manufactured goods suitable for government projects, having first ascertained the availability, quality and fair price of such goods. These lists are to be circulated to all government departments.

(2) All governmental contracts shall contain a clause obligating contractors to purchase the locally manufactured goods in the lists prepared by the Ministry of Industry and Electricity. These contractors are prohibited from importing goods similar to those in the lists.

Resolution by the Council of Ministers
No. 1977 dated 17/11/1396

All Governmental Specifications must include Saudi products

"Technical departments in ministries and public organizations as well as consultants working for the government are hereby obligated to give priority to the products of Saudi industry in their specifications as long as the said products are satisfactory."

FOLEY SAUDI ARABIA COMPANY LIMITED URGES ALL PARTIES TO PURCHASE LOCALLY MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS TO AVOID THE SEVERE SANCTIONS WHICH MAY BE IMPOSED ON THOSE COMPANIES NOT COMPLYING WITH THE ABOVE RESOLUTIONS.

WE LOOK FORWARD TO THE CONTINUING COOPERATION WITH SAUDI MANUFACTURING COMPANIES.

Professor alters genes of human subjects

By Paul Jacobs

LOS ANGELES, (LAT) — A professor of medicine at the University of California, Los Angeles, has become the first known scientist to use the new techniques of genetic engineering on human subjects.

Dr. Martin J. Cline

Dr. Martin J. Cline, a specialist in blood disorders, attempted to treat two patients with a fatal blood disease by placing normal genes in their defective bone-marrow cells.

Cline performed the procedure in Italy and Israel at a time when he was awaiting permission to do it at UCLA. That permission was

No one had taken the final leap and attempted an experiment in humans.

But Cline, a researcher known for boldly moving to the forefront, proposed doing just that in the spring of 1979. Scientists consulted by the Times and mixed views of Cline's decision to go ahead with a human experiment.

Many of the laboratory scientists interviewed by phone said they believe that there are too many unanswered questions and that it is premature to jump ahead with experiments involving humans.

"I just think we ought to go a little more slowly," Robert Schimke, a Stanford University biology professor, said.

A human subject protection committee at UCLA, after more than a year of deliberation, refused to grant Cline permission to do human experiments without further work in laboratory animals. Without that permission, under federal and university rules, Cline could not have done the experiment on the UCLA campus. (The committee must determine whether the risks of a human experiment are balanced by expected benefits.)

Even before that decision was reached on July 22, however, Cline had performed the experiment on two young women — one at Hadassah hospital in Jerusalem — the other at University Poly Clinic in Naples, Italy.

Cline said in an extensive interview that it was not his intention in leaving the country to evade the federal rules for human experiments. The Israeli hospital subjected the genetic experiment to the same scrutiny required by the federal guidelines, Cline said. The Italian center used a more informal procedure, according to Cline, but still took steps to ensure that the patient was informed of risks and that the potential benefits outweighed any possible harm.

"These (experiments) were done when the decision was still pending at UCLA," Cline said, "and I had no idea about the ultimate decision."

The first patient, a 21-year-old woman, was treated in Jerusalem on July 10 and 11. The second patient, a 16-year-old woman, was given the gene treatment on July 15 in Naples. Both women suffer from a disease that is quite rare in the United States but common among people native to the countries of the Mediterranean — beta-thalassemia major. Cline said he left the country to do the experiments only because it was easier to find thalassemia patients outside the country.

On the UCLA campus, Cline had planned a similar experiment using patients suffering from another hemoglobin disorder, sickle cell anemia, which afflicts a large number of blacks. For technical reasons, it was easier to test the genetic engineering technique in thalassemia patients. Such patients lack the ability to produce a component of normal hemoglobin, the molecule in red blood cells that carries oxygen to the tissues of the body. With continual blood transfusions, thalassemia patients sometimes live into adulthood, but the condition nevertheless takes its toll on the ability of patients to live normally. Both patients treated by Cline had heart problems as a result of their disease, which also causes bone deformities and makes them subject to frequent fractures.

"Ordinarily I wouldn't comment about this until I submitted the results to a reviewed scientific journal," Cline said.

"But I am willing to talk about it given the level of emotion about genetic engineering. This type of thing will put me in a relatively embarrassing position with my scientific colleagues."

Earlier this year, Cline and other colleagues at UCLA announced the first experiments in which new genetic material was successfully transferred to a living animal. The experiments, in mice, indicated that it might soon be technically possible to apply the same techniques to man, and that is what Cline and his colleagues in Israel and Italy attempted to do with the two thalassemia patients. In both cases, the physicians removed a small amount of bone marrow from the patient and then exposed the cells to genes capable of producing the normal blood component that the patient was lacking. The marrow cells were then returned to the patient. The hope was that the patients would begin producing normal hemoglobin.

After almost three months, it now seems unlikely that that has happened. But Cline is still analyzing blood and marrow samples that have regularly been taken from the patients since their treatment. It is still possible that the experiment was a partial success — that the normal genes were transferred but for some reason did not produce the normal hemoglobin component or produced it in only small amounts. Cline believes it may take several months to find out.

Both patients are alive and doing well, according to Cline. Neither was bedridden at the time of the treatment, despite the seriousness of their conditions.

There is general agreement that not much is known about how the genetic engineering techniques used by Cline actually work. Two years ago, Dr. Richard Axel of Columbia University and others showed that cells would take up small bits of genetic material if the material was treated with the chemical, calcium phosphate.

The relatively simple technique was quickly added to the growing list of methods used in genetic engineering — in manipulating the basic material that determines what a cell or organism or animal is like.

A number of researchers, Cline among them, have been studying how the process works in test tube experiments that use animal and human cells.

Cline agrees that placing genes in human cells is "uncharted ground" — the reason he believes that the UCLA committee refused to permit his proposed human experiments. But he refers to animal results, some of them still unpublished, to prove that the worst possibilities are unlikely to happen.

EXPERIMENT: Years of research preceded the operations

"It will take many, many years to understand all the controls on human genes in human," Cline said.

"When do you consider animal experiments adequate?" He asked. "When do you feel ready for a transition to man?"

"Here's a patient who has a life-threatening disease with a limited life expectancy and no options with modern treatment. Is now the time to try an experimental treatment?"

A noted East Coast researcher in the same field believes that Cline's decision to go ahead with a human experiment "reflects scientifically poor judgment." But the same scientist, who asked not to be named, added that he was a laboratory researcher who did not see seriously ill patients for whom there is no treatment.

"We don't see 19-year-olds, dying in the hospital," the scientist said. "Cline does."

Scientists who know Cline's animal experiments point out that the work has not yet been repeated by other laboratories — the ultimate test of whether a result is accepted in the scientific world.

Word of Cline's human experiment has spread through the grapevine of scientists who work in genetic engineering. When reports of the work reached the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md., officials asked for an investigation.

On Sept. 8, Charles R. McCarthy, director of the Office for Protection from Research Risks, asked UCLA chancellor Charles E. Young for a complete accounting of Cline's human experiment by Oct. 15. In his letter, McCarthy wanted to know if the experiment had been turned down by the campus human subjects protection committee, whether it had been reviewed at any other institution, and whether federal money was involved in the materials, salary, or travel in carrying out the experiment.

Cline said that he has cooperated fully in providing the chancellor with the information requested. McCarthy would only confirm that an investigation is under way. He did, however, point out that there are no penalties under current federal rules for a researcher who violates the human subjects protection rules.

Cline said that he is planning no additional human experiments until he has completely evaluated the results in the first two patients. He is keenly aware of the emotional reaction of the public to any controversy over genetic engineering, and he took pains to point out that his experiment involved inserting genes in a small number of defective cells in order to treat a disease — that it did not involve changing the genetics of the whole person.

"If I'd known there was going to be a hullabaloo," Cline said, "I wouldn't have done it."

In Cody, Wyoming

Buffalo Bill rides again at Wild West museum

By Earl Gustafson

CODY, Wyo. (LAT) — "The great plainsman is dead" shrieked one headline when he died, in 1917. "Farewell, old scout" read another.

He lived in many places — Kansas, Nebraska, New York, Wyoming and even Sacramento, Calif. But most Americans associate him with the Wyoming prairie town he founded and was named for, Cody. If William F. (Buffalo Bill) Cody could see Cody today, he'd probably be pleased to how little the place has changed.

The hotel he built in 1902 and named for his daughter, the Irma, is still standing and doing a brisk restaurant business, and the 60-foot-long cherry wood bar given him by Queen Victoria is in good shape.

But he'd probably be happiest at a huge structure on the town's west side where a quarter-million visitors a year view a Western art museum, an Indian museum, a Buffalo Bill museum and perhaps America's largest firearms museum. It's the Buffalo Bill Historical Center. Anyone who's enjoyed a Zane Grey novel, or as a kid owned a replica of "The gun that won the west," loved cowboy movies, hunted, collected guns or admired Western art, will find something of interest at the center.

The Buffalo Bill Historical Center is really

four museums:

— The Whitney Gallery of Western Art — with pieces by masters like Frederic Remington, Charles Russell, N.C. Wyeth, Albert Bierstadt and Edgar Paxson — has one of America's most comprehensive Western collections. A top attraction: twisting, churning bronzes by Remington, depicting man and horse in frozen action: The Bronco Buster, the fallen rider, coming thru the rye, two clumps.

— The Plains Indian museum is a display of the buffalo culture of the Crow, Blackfeet, Sioux, Cheyenne, Shoshone and Arapaho tribes. They devised more than 100 uses for the buffalo.

— The Buffalo Bill Museum, which dates to 1917, contains Buffalo Bill memorabilia covering his days as a wagon train teamster, trapper, pony express rider, Union army soldier, Indian fighter, Buffalo hunter, army scout and showman.

There can be little question Buffalo Bill would have regarded such a museum as a splendid idea. One due to this is the surprisingly large number of photographs that exist of him. Plainly, the plainsman loved to be photographed.

— The Winchester Firearms Museum is one of the largest gun collections, about 5,000, in the world. Presented to the center in 1976, it is displayed as a history of firearms, 1300 to 1900.

A recent addition is a computer terminal linked to an information system for the collection. By typing a code number into the terminal, a printout appears. It gives the visitor added information on a gun, such as its designer, the number manufactured, performance characteristics, price, etc.

— Some eye-catchers, from revolutionary war days:

— A 1760 British .78 sea service musket.

— A 1733 "Brown Bess" .75 musket with bayonet, eight feet long.

From Civil Wars years:

— A 231-2 pound Harrington-Read .45 sniper's rifle.

— A Sharp's 1863 "coffee mill" .53 carbine with coffee grinder inside the stock.

— A Savage .36 Navy revolver.

From the "Winning the West (1865-1890)" section:

— An 1866 Spencer .56 sporting rifle.

— An 1874 Sharps .50 sporting rifle.

— An 1876 Winchester .45 rifle.

— A Remington .41 double deringer.

— An 1878 Colt .10 shotgun.

And from assorted eras:

— An 1836 U.S. Army .36 knife-pistol, with foldout knife, nail file, tweezers and toothpick.

— An 1860 "my friend," a two-inch-long .22 pocket pistol with brass knuckle grip.

— An 1883 Gatling gun .45.

Al-Khobar, Lama is producing two complete bath sets a day, with a future capacity of eight. A small operation trying to break into a market of 20-30,000 pieces a year, according to Lama commercial manager Fayek S. Hourani, the company is at a volume disadvantage since all items are basically hand-made.

But molded cultured marble has the texture and appearance of marble block and allows the customer to choose the style he desires. Resistant to acid and stains, even ink, and more durable and less expensive than fiberglass or ceramic products, the product has attracted SR500,000 in individual contracts so far, according to Hourani. In addition, a SR150,000 contract with Consolidated Contractors International Company to supply 18 new student dormitories at the University of Petroleum and Minerals with bathroom sinks was recently signed.

"We anticipated sales of SR 4-5 million our first year," Hourani said. "We'll be more than happy with 15-20 per cent of the market. Even 10 per cent would be enough." Prices range from SR 6,500 for a bathtub, bidet, toilet and vanity to SR 15,000 for a luxury set including shower, vanity bathtub, toilet, bidet and panelling.

BATH: Lama's luxurious circular tub

The marble powder is being imported at present from the U.S., where the process was first developed and put on the market in the early 1950's. However, in a few months 60-70 per cent of the marble base will be obtained in Saudi Arabia's Eastern Province, Hourani said. The source will be quarries on the Abqaiq Road. The polyester resin and a gelcoat is bought from Saudi Industrial Resin Co. in Jeddah, continuing the "Buy Saudi" theme that Lama is advertising. Fixtures are also purchased locally.

Cultured marble is being sold in Germany, the United Kingdom and the U.S. on a large scale, Hourani said. Lama follows guidelines for desirable physical characteristics, structural integrity, and workmanship established by the Cultured Marble Institute in the U.S. Products are guaranteed in normal use. Cultured marble is five times stronger than marble block and more durable than fiberglass, ceramic or enamel-coated metal products, according to tests.

If Lama is successful in the Al-Khobar area, and spokesmen say that preliminary market surveys and current demand indicate it will be, another factory may open in Jubail.

At present, supplies and sales are less than two per cent of the market, here and in Riyadh. In the capital city, Al Mona company has been making a similar product for the past year except that it is produced in one color without the marble-look streaks. Lama is banking on the custom-made aspect of its cultured marble, along with its other sales qualities, allowing an adequate share of a competitive market.

4 paramilitary men shot dead in Spain

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Nov. 4 (R) — Four civil guards were killed and six civilians wounded when two young men opened fire with submachine-guns in a bar at Zarzuz near San Sebastian, police sources said Tuesday.

The gunmen stepped into the Aizea bar shortly before midnight and fired a long burst of gunfire at the plainclothes guards, the sources said.

Witnesses said the men shouted "Gora ETA Militar" (Long Live ETA Military) before fleeing in a car. The military wing of the Basque separatist organization ETA has claimed responsibility for most of the political killings in the Basque country. Monday night's attack raised this year's toll in the region to 99.

Police said the four paramilitary civil guards belonged to traffic police. Two of the wounded were believed to be waiters in the bar and another was said to be a hairdresser.

Witnesses said a fourth sympathized with the moderate Basque Nationalist Party (PNV), which heads the Basque home rule government.

The attack, a day after demonstrators protesting against ETA killings clashed with separatist supporters in San Sebastian, was the worst since guerrillas belonging to ETA's military wing killed four civil guards in September.

Tighten border security

Finns slam door on exiles

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 4 (OFNS) — Finland has tightened security along its border with the Soviet Union to stop Russian dissidents entering the country to seek exile in the West.

The move followed "discussions" with the Soviet border authorities, according to Col. Jarmo Mattila, who is in charge of frontier patrols in Finnish Lapland. But Mattila explains disarmingly that the increased security is designed only to prevent poaching during the present elk-hunting season.

Hunters who have been stopped by army patrols agree their hunting licences were examined, but add that the patrols were much more interested in searching their vehicles for "unauthorized passengers."

The increased security has been most noticeable on a forest road parallel to the border between Tuusula and Narvika, near the town of Salla. Several fugitives from the Soviet Union have used this road in the past.

There is a small but significant exodus of Soviet dissidents via Finland every year. According to Skypa, the Finnish security police, there are around 50 illegal border crossings annually.

Dissidents stopped in Finland are usually sent straight back to the Soviet Union. The latest reported case was at the beginning of this month, when a Soviet citizen was returned to Russia without a public hearing of his case because "he did not have a Finnish residence permit."

J. Juhani Kortessalmi, of the Rural Party, embarrassed Prime Minister Mauno Koivisto's Social Democratic government by calling attention to the expulsion in a parliamentary question.

Why, Kortessalmi wanted to know, was the Russian not given a residence permit under the terms of the Helsinki Agreement? "The case is disturbing and very harmful to Finland's image," he said.

Sources close to the government admit the increased border security was brought in to placate Soviet authorities, who are convinced there is a secret network of Finns helping Soviet dissidents to escape to Sweden.

The refugee problem is just one of the highly sensitive areas in Finland's relationship with "the bear next door," a relationship which varies from "accommodation" to outright appeasement.

A spokesman for Skypa sounded disturbingly like an echo from the KGB when he said that, as a rule, Soviet citizens crossing the border into Finland were either "drunks or mentally ill."

Finns who have come into contact with Soviet refugees are instructed by Skypa not to talk about their experiences. Skypa chief Seppo Tiitinen says this is necessary because to make such matters public would harm Finland's "security aspirations."

Alexander Jourjine, a 27-year-old graduate from Moscow university, who fled to the West via Finland last year and is now studying at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said it was generally known in the Soviet Union that Finland sent back refugees.

"I just kept going until I got to Sweden, then I felt safe," he said.

He climbed two border fences — one in Soviet territory, the other in Finland — and then walked 200 miles across desolate terrain, often in sub-zero temperatures, to cross into Sweden at Karesuando. During his trek he encountered two Finns who fed him and filled his rucksack with food. "I told them I was an American tourist," he said, "I don't think they believed me for a minute."

Seaga: Sends Cuban home

Cuban emissary leaves Jamaica

KINGSTON, Nov. 4 (R) — Cuban Ambassador Ilse Estrada, who was expelled by the new Jamaican government of Edward Seaga, has left for Havana on a special flight. Communist sources said.

Prime Minister Seaga said on taking office last Saturday he was asking Cuba to withdraw Estrada, whom he has accused of interfering in Jamaica's affairs. His note to the Cuban Embassy said Jamaica wanted to maintain friendly relations but this would be difficult with Estrada as envoy.

Seaga's Jamaica Labor Party scored a landslide general election victory last Thursday over the Peoples National Party led by Michael Manley, who had been friendly with the Fidel Castro regime.

Film festival to open

KUALA LUMPUR, Nov. 4 (R) — Eighteen countries will take part in the Ninth International Short Film Festival which begins here next Wednesday. An organization spokesman said 23 films in English or subtitled in English will be screened over five nights, covering a variety of interests — animated cartoon, documentary, experimental, and children's films.

The participating countries are Austria, Australia, Belgium, Britain, Canada, Egypt, France, West Germany, Indonesia, Italy, Japan, South Korea, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Pakistan, Poland, Sweden and Switzerland.

Vital sea lanes at mercy of Soviets

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 (AP) — For the first time since the Russian Revolution, Moscow now has a growing capability to sever sea lanes vital to United States economic and political survival, a U.S. naval strategist says.

Rear Adm. Robert Hanks, who was director of strategic plans and policy for the U.S. Navy Department when he retired in 1977, writes in a new study that while U.S. naval strength has undergone a rapid decline over the past two decades, Soviet sea power has steadily increased.

Hanks concludes in a monograph entitled "The Unnoticed Challenge: Soviet Strategy and the Global Choke Points," that to meet the Soviet naval challenge, the U.S. Navy must be rebuilt and political, economic and military strength mobilized.

He notes that Soviet warships and patrol aircraft now routinely cross the north Atlantic from northern and Baltic bases to Cuba, and the Soviet Navy is now well established along the west African coast in ports such as Conakry, Pointe Noire, Luanda and Mocimboa.

Murderer fined, freed

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 4 (AP) — A white man was fined $536 Monday for killing a black man who allegedly had insulted his wife.

Lourens Daniel Swanepoel, 31, had pleaded guilty to culpable homicide in the death of Willie Ndaba. Gerrit Petrus Jacobus Klopper, 35, a friend of Swanepoel's was fined $203 for assaulting Ndaba.

Swanepoel told the court that Klopper had hit Ndaba with his fist after Ndaba insulted Mrs. Swanepoel. Swanepoel admitted he then dropped a cement wash basin frame on Ndaba. Swanepoel was ordered to pay the fine or serve a six-month sentence. He also was given a three-year suspended sentence.

Martian canals said ancient watercourses

BATON ROUGE, Louisiana, Nov. 4 (AP) — The "canals" crisscrossing the surface of the planet Mars were once natural watercourses rather than man-made irrigation devices, a Louisiana State University professor has concluded in a study released Monday.

After making exhaustive analyses of photographs taken by Viking space probes which landed small laboratories on the planet in 1976, Dag Nummedal found that the thousands of dried beds were created by the rapid thaw of frozen surface water during volcanic activity.

The waterways lasted for about 2.9 thousand million years, from three thousand million years ago to 100 million years ago, according to the report. Nummedal arrived at those figures by calculating the ages of craters caused by the impact of meteorites on the dried canals.

SOVIET CARRIER: The four-year-old Soviet aircraft carrier Kiev sails the Mediterranean. The 40,000-ton vessel is built to carry the YAK-36 vertical take-off jet fighter.

USSR today has the naval forces and operating bases necessary to interdict every significant shipping lane in the north and south Atlantic oceans as well as all of those in the Caribbean Sea.

Hanks says, the Soviet Navy has continued to ply the waters adjacent to the horn of Africa with its access to excellent harbor and shore facilities left behind at Aden by the British. Though it lost its Somali base at Berbera, Moscow surely considers Ethiopia as a perfect staging area for thrusts into all of central Africa, Hanks says.

His study says that the prime Soviet objective in the Gulf area appears to be to draw a noose around the Arabian peninsula. In the Indian Ocean, Hanks notes, the permanent Soviet naval presence that began when the British withdrew from "east of Suez," marked the beginning of a close cooperation between India and the U.S.S.R.

Aside from North Korea and Indochina, he says, there seems to be limited opportunity for the Soviets along the Pacific Ocean's western rimland.

The Soviets are looking for openings to exploit in the region and have been making efforts to establish footholds in Samoa and Tonga. Bases here, Hanks says, would put the Soviets astride a major Pacific artery stretching from the United States and the Panama Canal to Australia and New Zealand.

The U.S. has adopted a plan to swing naval units from the Pacific to the Atlantic in event of any war in Europe, Hanks writes.

"The impact such a U.S. abandonment of the western Pacific would have is not difficult to envision... (It) would likely cause Tokyo to assume a neutral stance, at best, or seek some sort of accommodation with the Soviet Union, at worst. The effect on the People's Republic of China... is equally if not more worrisome," he says.

NCHP and SCANMEL extend their co-operation in the Europe-Middle East Trade

NCHP and Scanmel have agreed to extend the present slot exchange arrangement whereby NCHP will be inserting one of their container vessels in a joint service with two Ro/Ro and one Cellular container vessel provided by Scanmel. The Havraise vessel is "Ville D'Anvers" presently under conversion, whereas Scanmel will insert "Tarago", "Tricolor" and "Vancouver Forest", all three already employed in this service. With the four vessels the parties will continue to offer fortnightly sailings to all major destinations in the Middle East.

The arrangement is a co-operation on the operational side and the two lines will maintain their own commercial identities and continue to market their services through their respective agents.

Naval Et Commercial Havraise Peninsulaire (NCHP) of Paris have since long been operating in this trade and the same goes for Scandinavian Middle East Line (Scanmel), which is wholly owned by Wilh. Wilhelmsen of Oslo. Wilh. Wilhelmsen have long tradition in the Middle East and are as well involved in Liner Trades to this area from the USA, Far East and Australia.

NCHP and Scanmel have already been Co-Operating for nearly two years and are by this new agreement further strengthening their co-operation.

Poverty, domestic strife darken Brazil's horizon

BRASILIA, Nov. 4 (AP) — Brazil, a decade ago on the verge of becoming a world industrial power, today is struggling with unrelenting economic problems.

At the same time, the South American giant faces resurgent right-wing terrorism that threatens the base of a military government that has promised to return political power to civilians.

Across its vast expanse that touches on every South American nation except Chile and Ecuador, the sharp contrast of wealth and extreme poverty stand out.

In the impoverished interior of the northeast are people who still live in huts of mud. In such metropolises as Rio de Janeiro, Brasilia and Sao Paulo, the affluent can make instant, direct-dial telephone calls across oceans.

Yet, President Joao Figueiredo has scored significant successes in his first 18 months in office. He has strengthened ties with Latin American neighbors and with black Africa. At home, he has signaled an end to stem political repression that marked the years following the 1964 right-wing coup that overthrew the leftist civilian government of President Joao Goulart.

But the successes of Figueiredo, the fifth former army general to rule the Portuguese-speaking nation of 123 million since the takeover 16 years ago, are overshadowed by chronic economic problems that include annual inflation of more than 100 per cent, a third world record foreign debt stuck at the equivalent of more than $50 billion and a balance of trade deficit that reached $2.5 billion at the end of August.

The nation's problems, which one leading newspaper warned "could corrode the fabric of society and rupture the solidarity of the whole and all of its parts," also include:

Brazil's Germans preserve culture, shun politics of ancestral homeland

NOVO HAMBURGO, Brazil, Nov. 4 (APF) — About three million Brazilians of German origin live in the southern Rio Grande do Sul state, about one-third of its inhabitants, and none of them dream any more of going back to the fatherland.

Brazilian author Jose Guimaraes, who has written numerous books on German immigration, explains: "Before the last war some German settlers and their descendants were thinking of making a fortune here and then going to Germany. But today all that is finished. They know they are better off in Brazil and their future is Brazilian."

For the new rising generation, Germany is little more than a faraway country with attractive folklore. It is financially inaccessible for most of them but nevertheless all of them hope one day to make a pilgrimage to the land of their ancestors.

Novo Hamburgo was one of the first German immigration centers at the beginning of the 19th century, first settled by the Mentz family from Hamburg. Today it is one of the busiest industrial cities in southern Brazil.

German culture received a mortal blow on the eve of World War II. In 1938 President Getulio Vargas unleashed a brutal wave of oppression against the Italian and German communities in Brazil as part of his "nationality campaign."

The German language was forbidden and hundreds of private schools where it was taught were closed down. Television is so widespread and enters so many German houses that the language is being used less and less.

— A wave of right-wing terrorist attacks, reminiscent of anti-Communist crusades in the 1960s, aimed at opposition political figures and organizations, alternative publications and small-time criminals.

— An urgent need to guarantee energy supplies because the Iraq-Iran war unexpectedly cut off 45 per cent of the nation's 850,000 barrels of daily foreign oil imports.

— Growing skepticism about that extent of Figueiredo's democracy program, following action by the government-controlled political party to block attempts to give Congress anything more than rubber stamp legislative authority.

Brazil also faces chronic problems caused by the rift between the less than 10 per cent of the population that controls most of the national wealth and the bottom 50 per cent which is forced to live on less than the minimum legal monthly wage, the equivalent of $75 a month.

The Roman Catholic Church, among the government's strongest critics, says that unless such inequalities are resolved, millions of the poor will continue to migrate from rural subsistence living to the overcrowded slum dwellings that are a part of most Brazilian cities.

Pope John Paul II supported the social-activist church's view during his 12-day pilgrimage through Brazil in July. He assailed a system in which "a minority flaunts that which is lacking on the table of everyone else."

Despite Figueiredo's repeated vows "to make Brazil as democratic as possible," the president and his centrally run regime give clear signs they are not ready yet to loosen controls. The government's Social Democratic Party continues to dominate the House and Senate, saying that it will decide how fast the democratic process evolves.

But it is spoken fluently and continuously in the smaller villages where Germans settled, and occasionally Brazilian servants speak it. For instance in the village of Linha Schmidt the Freitag family servants, for two generations, have spoken German and have taken the family name.

But in general, Brazilians of German origin under 30 do not speak German. A German teacher said that his pupils, all of German origin, looked on their ancestral language as "foreign."

Ulrich Dieter Klein, West German vice-consul at Porto Alegre, noted: "In 20 years time nobody here will speak German."

There are few German teachers, and German-scholarships given for visits to West Germany have not had the results benefactors expected. The German language is not recognized as a subject for entry examinations into Brazilian universities.

In fact, German spoken in the countryside is a mixture of old German, dialect and Portuguese.

A group of teachers at the Martin Luther College at Estrela in Rio Grande do Sul said that Portuguese was modernizing German, and that Portuguese technical terms were being Germanized.

For instance, a German born here would call for a drink with the word "caneca-wasser," form the Portuguese word "caneca." But some descendants of German settlers can speak an impeccable German, and in some Lutheran churches the service is always in that language.

LATEX HARVEST: Liberian workers carry buckets of raw latex to a processing station on a rubber plantation owned by the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., a U.S. firm. Some 21,000 Liberians work on rubber plantations covering 90,000 acres in the west African country.

Aussies find 41st species of kangaroo

CANBERRA, Nov. 4 A new big-footed species of kangaroo has been found in Australia. Scientists studying the first live specimens of the animal captured two years ago have confirmed that it is different from the previously known 40 species.

The long-footed potoroo (Potorous longipes) was discovered in dense eucalyptus forest near the tiny township of Bellbird in the East Gippsland district of Victoria.

Scientists call the creature Big Pot, to distinguish it from the Little Pot (Potorous macrourus), relatively common in eastern Australia. Newly recognized Big Pot is nearly twice the size of Little Pot when fully grown and has much longer feet.

A senior research officer, John Seebeck, says Big Pot has been found in only one small area. "However, we believe that its range may be quite wide as the kind of forest in which we found it is quite common in eastern Victoria and southern New South Wales," he said.

Thatcher maintains high interest rates against business advice

LONDON, Nov. 4 (R) — Every Thursday morning the pound sterling flutters on foreign exchange markets as currency dealers nervously consider whether the British government may be about to yield to the anguished cries of industrialists for lower interest rates.

But at half past noon last Thursday, when such announcements are traditionally made, the news was the same as for the last 17 weeks: "Bank of England maximum lending rate unchanged at 16 per cent."

The future of MLR, as the central bank's key lending rate is popularly known, is at the heart of an intensifying national debate over the government's monetarist policy aimed at rescuing the British economy from inflation.

Hardly a week has gone by without a newspaper or commentator predicting that the interest rate is about to come down. But so unyielding has been Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's conservative government that gloom has now set in and pessimists feel it may be the new year before there is some relief.

"Because of an intensifying squeeze on profits at a time of recession at home and abroad, British industrial companies, particularly major exporters, have been pressing strongly for a lower exchange rate."

They believe the pound sterling will come down from its present high levels against the dollar and other currencies if only the authorities would cut MLR, preferably by a large amount.

A lower pound would make British exports cheaper and thus easier to sell in competitive overseas markets, where orders have dropped sharply in recent weeks.

The British government was facing trouble with sky-high interest rate for the past year. The Chancellor of the Exchequer (finance minister), Sir Geoffrey Howe, lifted MLR to 17 per cent last November as part of the government's full-blooded monetarist policy aimed at squeezing inflation out of the economy by cutting government spending and making credit extremely expensive.

MLR, on which all other rates in the economy depend, came down to 16 per cent last July 3 and has remained at that level since.

A high pound makes raw-material and food imports cheaper and hence helps reduce inflation, but Mrs. Thatcher and Sir Geoffrey are portrayed as endangering the country's industrial economy for the sake of an unproven dogma, which critics say will not in the end provide a cure to Britain's economic ills.

The government's view is that the deflationary dose is beginning to work in bringing down inflation and that it would be folly to abandon it now.

But the plight of British industry has become so serious that the Confederation of British Industry (CBI) a longtime supporter of Mrs. Thatcher and her strategy, has called for a cut of four per cent in MLR. It says that would be a calculated risk worth taking to prevent further bankruptcies, factory closures and layoffs.

Imperial Chemical Industries (ICI) the country's biggest manufacturer, recently reported the first quarterly loss in its 54-year history, partly due to the strong pound as well as difficult conditions in world markets.

Ford, the most successful car company in Britain, has told unions it is barely breaking even, while the B.L. group is still struggling to survive despite huge infusions of state aid.

The troubles of the car industry reflect the twin pressures of high domestic costs and an exchange rate which helps foreign competitors during a period of deep recession.

The pound has risen some 20 per cent against the West German mark this year, 18 per cent against the French franc, three per cent against the Japanese yen, and 10 per cent against the U.S. dollar.

"We have got to the point where the brightest stars of British industry are being affected," said a CBI spokesman, claiming that the situation had gone well beyond merely forcing inefficient British companies to modernize and reduce workforces after years of overmanning.

Even within the ruling conservative party there are doubts about the monetarist approach when unemployment has risen faster than anywhere else in Western Europe to above two million or 7.8 per cent, and may even approach three million in 1981, according to expert forecasts.

Thailand seeks Saudi finance

BANGKOK, Nov. 4 (AP) — Thai Industry Minister Chatichai Choonhavan will ask Saudi Arabia to help financing construction of an oil refinery in Thailand, a spokesman for the industrial ministry said Tuesday.

The request will be made during talks between Choonhavan and Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmad Zaki Yamani next month, the spokesman said.

He quoted Chatichai as saying that "the more oil refineries we have here, the better. If we increase our oil refinery capacity, we could even export refined petroleum products."

The Thai government has laid down two main conditions for investors in this field: They must have the money and the crude oil, the spokesman said.

OPEC launches news agency

VIENNA, Nov. 4 (AP) — The news agency of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPECNA) has started a daily news service to some 350 recipients in 70 countries.

The first item on Monday was the announcement that an OPEC seminar scheduled to have taken place here Nov. 24 to 26 will be postponed until the first half of 1981.

Although OPECNA quoted OPEC Secretary-General Rene Ortiz as source, no reason for the postponement was mentioned. Observers believed it a consequence of the Iran-Iraq war.

Ortiz at the same time said a regular conference of the OPEC oil ministers in Bali Dec. 15 and 16 will take place as scheduled.

Other items under a Kuwaiti deadline told of a meeting of oil ministers of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries in Kuwait next month and also that a seminar on oil trap engineering will be held. OPECNA reported from Caracas that Venezuela and France signed an oil agreement which "opens the door for the French state oil company ELF Equitaine to purchase Venezuelan heavy crude oil."

The report said the agreement called for a refinery processing heavy crude oil to be built in France and that at its initial stage, the refinery would have a capacity of approximately 35,000 barrels.

The OPECNA also reported on OPEC aid to developing countries and printed items on national oil policies from member countries' news agencies. It is scheduled to transmit 1,500 words daily from OPEC's Vienna headquarters to 350 points in 70 countries.

MOBILE BANDMILL: Low cost horizontal bandmill — the Forrester 150 — was recently demonstrated in Britain cutting logs up to 1820mm in diameter and designed for heavy industrial work. Logs can be sawn as they are felled, increasing output and reducing transportation costs, as sawn logs take up less space than uncut ones.

Annual report says Pakistan exports increase

KARACHI, Nov. 4 (AFP) — Pakistan's exports in the last financial year (July 1979-June 1980) rose by more than 38 per cent to 23,400 million rupees (about $2,300 million), the annual report of the State Bank of Pakistan, issued here showed.

This was the second year in succession that Pakistan exports had expanded by more than 30 per cent. The previous year (1978-79) the exports increase had amounted to 30.4 per cent. The major export items were listed as rice, raw cotton, cotton yarn, petroleum products, woolen carpets and rugs.

But the country's balance-of-payments position remained under pressure as imports totalled 46,900 million rupees ($4,600 million). Imports rose by 29 per cent over the preceding year's (1978-79) total of 36,400 million (about $3,600 million).

The report said that the main cause of the balance-of-payments difficulties was the sharp increase in the prices of oil by the petroleum producing countries. Moreover, the inflationary trends became more pronounced in 1979-80 as the consumer price and wholesale price indices moved up 10.4 per cent and 9.3 per cent respectively. Preceding year's (1978-79) figures were 8.3 per cent and 6.7 per cent respectively.

Oil imports contributed to price pressures as the oil bill amounted to more than 20 per cent of the gross domestic product.

The State Bank report said that the growth rate of the national economy showed a 6.2 per cent increase in 1979-80, compared with a 5.9 per cent increase in 1978-79. There was an appreciable improvement in the budgetary position of the government and the rate of domestic savings increased considerably, but remained well below the average savings levels in developing countries.

UAE sets up new oil firm

ABU DHABI, Nov. 4 (R) — A new oil organization will distribute petroleum products in the seven states of the United Arab Emirates (UAE) from the new year under a law approved by the cabinet, the Emirates News Agency said.

Called the Emirates General Petroleum Organization, it will also undertake the marketing, transport and storage of oil products.

The government decided to create the organization following a decision in the UAE's northern emirates last February against increases in the prices of petrol and diesel oil imported and distributed by Calson, Shell and British Petroleum.

The UAE capital state, Abu Dhabi, was not affected because it is almost self-sufficient in petrol and other fuels.

The government tackled the price problem by allocating $120 million in subsidies on imported petroleum products this year. The UAE is also boosting its refinery capacity to achieve self-sufficiency.

The UAE petroleum Minister, Mansour Al-Otaibi, will be the chairman of the new organization's board of directors, which will also include representatives from several other ministries.

Meanwhile it was announced that the United Arab Emirates do not intend to increase oil production to fill gap in the industrialized nations' supplies created by the Iranian-Iraqi conflict.

Oil Minister Mansour Al-Otaibi told the newspaper Al-Jalid that his country's oil policy is "stable" and its production will be limited to 50,000 barrels a day.

EEC parliament rejects budget

LUXEMBOURG, Nov. 4 (R) — The European Parliament has once again demonstrated its determination to alter the European Economic Community (EEC) budget.

Pietro Adornato, the chief representative of the 410-member assembly's budget committee, said Monday the $29.3 billion draft budget presented by EEC finance ministers was unacceptable.

He told the parliament when it opened a four-day debate on the budget that the draft clearly ignored the parliament's repeated demands because it included cuts of about $21.1 billion in regional and social spending. These areas, which include energy projects, industrial investment, transport and the environment, are precisely those in which the parliament pushed for spending increases earlier this year.

He said that his committee had agreed on a series of amendments designed to maintain the cuts in the EEC commission's preliminary draft made by the ministers in September.

If approved by the parliament in a vote on Thursday, the amendments would add about $1.6 billion to the council's draft. More than a third of this would be for energy projects.

BRIEFS

ROME, (AFP) — The Italian airline Alitalia is expected to end its 1980 financial year with a deficit of about 40,000 million lira (about $44 million), after a drastic drop of passenger traffic during August, September and October. But Alitalia President Umberto Nordio announced in Montreal that the losses will not mean adjustments in the company's capital, which is expected to be carried over into the next financial year.

MOSCOW, (AFP) — Soviet engineers have developed an automatic shipboard system for detecting oil slicks, based on reflection coefficients, and this will be put into action shortly, Tass news agency reported.

From injuries in September bout

Welsh boxer Johnny Owen dies

LOS ANGELES Nov. 4 (AP) — Boxer Johnny Owen of Wales, who never regained consciousness after being knocked out by Lope Pintor on Sept. 19, died Monday night at California hospital medical center, a hospital spokesman said. Owen was 24.

Owen had undergone brain surgery twice after his loss to Pintor of Mexico City in their World Boxing Council bantamweight title bout at the Olympic Auditorium.

The British and European bantamweight champion, Owen had remained in very critical condition since being admitted to the hospital shortly after the fight.

His death, which came at 7:30 p.m. PST (0330 GMT Tuesday), was due to "respiratory complications due to his prolonged coma," the hospital spokesman said. "The physician said his condition deteriorated rapidly in the past 12 hours due to pulmonary insufficiency and the onset of pneumonia."

The hospital delayed announcing Owen's death until his relatives in Wales could be notified, according to the spokesman.

Owen, a hero in his native mining village of Merthyr-Tydfyl, had never before been knocked out in a pro fight. In the early rounds against the heavily favored Pintor, Owen was the aggressor, but the champion began to assert himself in the middle rounds twice knocking Owen down.

Then, in the 12th round, Owen ducked into a powerful Pintor uppercut and dropped unconscious to the canvas. Some watching a tape of the knockout blow believed the Welshman suffered the most damage when his head hit the canvas as he fell backward from the blow. But referee Marty Denkin, who didn't even bother to count the challenger out, said Owen was unconscious before he hit the canvas.

Nicknamed the "Merthyr Matchstick" because of his skinny 5-foot-8½ frame his loss to Pintor was only the second of his career. He won 26.

Pintor, 118 pounds, knocked Owen down the first time in the ninth round and then again in the 12th a minute before the telling blow, at 2:35 of the round.

"The ninth round, he was hit and went down...I talked to him," Denkin said afterward. "I asked, 'John, how do you feel?' In the British tradition, he said, 'Yes sir, I'm OK.' He never lost his politeness, his gentleness."

Owen's parents had flown from Wales shortly after the fight to keep a bedside vigil for him. There apparently was only one brief glimpse of hope for them, as the hospital reported that he was slightly improved after his second operation, on Sept. 26.

The last previous boxer to die of fight injuries in Los Angeles was Davey Moore, who was knocked out by Sugar Ray Ramos at Dodger Stadium in 1963. Owen is believed to be the 17th boxer to die in an American ring since.

Takes Argentina tourney

Larsen tops in chess field

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 4, (AP) — Denmark's Bent Larsen won the Clarin International chess tournament Monday night despite a final round loss to Sweden's Ulf Andersson in 69 moves after six hours play.

Larsen was assured of victory after his Sunday night win over Lubomir Kavalek of the United States put him out of reach of his nearest competition.

The Dane won eight games, drew three and lost two in the 13-round tournament, finishing with nine and a half points, half a point more than his nearest rival, Jan Timman of Holland, who defeated Fridrik Olafsson of Iceland in 41 moves in the final round.

Fourteen players, including world champion Anatoly Karpov of the Soviet Union, opened the tournament on Oct. 16 at the President Al-Yar theater. The tournament, sponsored by the Buenos Aires Newspaper Clarin, was worth $25,500 in prize money.

Karpov, who won only four games, drew seven and lost two, defeated Argentina's Miguel Quinteros in 35 moves in Monday's final round play.

day's final round. The Soviet finished with a total of seven and a half points, good for a tie with Andersson for fourth place.

In other final round play, Yuri Balashov of the Soviet Union defeated Miguel Najdorf of Argentina in 27 moves and Vlastimil Hort of Czechoslovakia defeated Sergio Giardelli, Argentina's junior champion, in 22 moves.

Two final games ended in draws. Kavalek, a Czech who lives in the United States, and Yugoslav Ljubomir Ljubojevic agreed to a draw after 17 moves. Argentina's Oscar Panno and Walter Browne of the United States did the same in only 18 moves.

Larsen, although already assured of first place, tried to add another victory Monday night, but found stiff resistance in Andersson, who went all-out to improve his place in the final standings.

Larsen, who lived in the Canary Islands, spent more than an hour after the game speaking in Spanish with the more than 1,000 chess fans who jammed the theater to watch final round play.

LAST PUNCH: Welsh boxer Johnny Owen, above, according to the referee already unconscious, drops to the canvas after ducking into a punch from Mexican Lope Pintor in the bantamweight championship fight in Los Angeles Sept. 20. Owen, below, was carried from the ring and underwent two operations. But he never regained consciousness, and died Tuesday night in Los Angeles.

Pryor defense set for this month

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 4 (AP) — Aaron Pryor signed a contract Monday to defend his World Boxing Association junior welterweight championship against Canadian Gaetan Hart on Nov. 22 at Riverfront Coliseum.

Pryor, who won the title from Antonio Cervantes of Columbia last August, will take home the biggest purse of his career, an estimated $100,000.

Hart, the Canadian lightweight champ, has a 45-18-3 record with 22 knockouts. He has won his last eight fights, and is rated No. 9 in his weight class.

Hart and Pryor have different styles. Hart is known as a hard puncher who does little dancing in the ring. He knocked out Cleveland Denny on June 20, and Denny later died.

Pryor, on the other hand, is not known as a hard puncher. Striking with punishing combinations, Pryor has racked up a 20-0 mark, with 24 knockouts. He never has gone more than 10 rounds as a professional.

He chalked up 18 points and was ably supported by Assad Takroui (17), Ual Zaier (15), A. Abdul Aziz (7), M. Abdul Salam (6) and A. Muhammad (2).

Saudi youth cagers win wild game

By Edward Thompson
Special Correspondent

BANGKOK, Nov. 4 — In a nerve-tangling contest which brought the crowd to its feet over half a dozen times, Saudi Arabia beat Bahrain 65-59 and kept its second — round entry chances alive as the sixth Asian youth basketball championships continued Monday at the Bangkok National Stadium. Half-time saw the victors hold a thin 32-31 lead.

From the first sound of the buzzer until the last second it was a real thriller and in appreciation the crowd gave both teams a standing ovation. The Bahrainis, who had done their homework well took the court with grit and determination hoping to exploit the Saudi Arabian weaknesses they had spotted in Sunday's match against Japan.

The alert Saudi Arabians too were ready for any eventuality. Skipper Ma'adh Abu, who played a giant role in their success, told the Arab News minutes before the game: "We will win tonight. We are not only going to beat Bahrain but will also try hard to defeat the other teams to gain a slot in the second round. Our team is strong, though lacking in experience."

After a minute of uncertainty, the Saudi Arabians set the scoreboard in motion when Abu caromed a 15-footer from the backboard through the hoop. A few seconds later Abu was in focus again, this time he uncoiled a jump shot which injected the vital inspiration the team needed.

The Bahrainis, not to be outdone, struck back a minute later and were soon on level terms, setting the stage for a battle royal. And what a battle it turned out to be.

The ball swung from one end of the court to the other and the lead was rarely more than a point or two until the last five minutes. Basket for basket, even free-throw for free-throw the teams battled on and on until the final blast was fired and the Saudi Arabians walked out happy, well-deserved victors.

The "man of the match" was Abu, who was all over the court, joining in attack, servicing his team with neat passes, scoring with pinpoint accuracy and doing an excellent job as playmaker.

He chalked up 18 points and was ably supported by Assad Takroui (17), Ual Zaier (15), A. Abdul Aziz (7), M. Abdul Salam (6) and A. Muhammad (2).

In other matches played Monday, Singapore beat Sri Lanka 85-44, Japan beat UAE 85-28, Kuwait beat India 68-50, South Korea beat Qatar 114-70, Philippines beat Malaysia 130-55, People's Republic of China beat Hong Kong 114-61.

In second leg of European competitions

Real Madrid facing early Cup exit

LONDON, Nov. 4 (R) — Spanish soccer champions Real Madrid, haunted by the ghosts of their illustrious past, face the humiliation of an early exit from the European Cup when they meet Hungary's Honved in Budapest Tuesday.

Real take a slender 1-0 lead to this second round, second-leg tie and they will find little consolation in the knowledge that Ajax of the Netherlands, also former winners, are likely to tread a similar path to defeat 24 hours later.

On Wednesday, when the majority of the matches in Europe's three club competitions are played, Ajax must overturn a 5-1 deficit against West Germany's Bayern Munich in Amsterdam if they are to repeat their successes of 1971, 1972 and 1973.

Real have won the Champions' Cup a record six times but five of those triumphs were achieved in the years 1956-60 when Di Stefano, Puskas, Gento and Santamaria provided the inspiration.

The boots of that foursome have never been adequately filled and though Real have two of Europe's most exciting strikers, Santamaria and England's Laurie Cunningham only an impeccable defensive display in Budapest can guarantee their survival.

Two other former winners should enjoy a more pleasant night's work.

Italy's Internazionale meet French champions Nantes in Milan with the cushion of a 2-1 lead from the first leg while England's Liverpool play hosts to neighbors Aberdeen, having won 1-0 in Scotland two weeks ago.

The Milanese are likely to be without international midfielder Gabriele Oriali but his loss will not be so crucial if Austrian Herbert Prohaska repeats his first-leg performance.

Prohaska has found life difficult in the ultra-defensive Italian league but he was in inspired mood in France, setting up the opening goal for Sandro Altobelli and scoring the second himself.

Aberdeen face the daunting task of doing what no English league side has achieved at Liverpool for 34 months — winning.

The Scots were far from outclassed in the first match but a fifth minute goal from Terry McDermott, which won the goal of the month award on British television, should ensure the 1977 and 1978 champions' progress into the quarter-finals.

The Champions' Cup could take on a new look this season with four other East European sides poised to join Honved in the next round.

East Germany's Dynamo Berlin should qualify at the expense of Czechoslovak champions Banik Ostrava, having emerged from the away tie with a goalless draw while Red Star of Yugoslavia must be confident of downing Swiss champions Basle who will defend a slim 1-0 lead in Belgrade.

Newport hoping to advance against Norway amateurs

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AFP) — Third Division English Football club Newport County, of Wales, have been warned to expect a hard fight from Norwegian amateur Hamrar in their European Cup Winners Cup return at Somerton Park on Tuesday.

Newport manager Len Ashurst has labelled the occasion "The biggest night in the Brown leads points blitz

SEATTLE, Washington, Nov. 4 (AP) — Cleveland coach Bill Musselman summed it up for his Cavaliers after his team's embarrassing 118-83 loss to the Seattle SuperSonics.

"We couldn't throw it in the ocean tonight," Musselman said after the Cavaliers were thrashed in the lone National Basketball Association game played Monday. "It was just one of those nights."

Cleveland hit just 36 of 117 field goal attempts, a 30.8 per cent success rate, scored only 39 points in the second half while yielding 68, and picked up just three steals and 11 assists.

For Seattle, it was all good news. Captain Fred Brown led a third-quarter blitz that turned a six-point Seattle lead halfway through it to a 24-point bulge at the buzzer.

The Sonics outscored the Cavs 37-19 in the period, with Brown gunning in 14 as the Sonics hit 74 per cent of their shots, mostly inside.

Cleveland could connect on just 32 per cent. Seattle center Jack Sikma added 23 points and 13 rebounds for the game while teammate James Bailey grabbed as many boards and brought home 18 points. Guard Vinnie Johnson dished out eight assists for the Sonics.

In the fourth period, with the Seattle lineup studied with reserves, the Sonics ran the lead to 38 before settling for the final margin of victory.

Sonics coach Lenny Wilkens played rookie guard Bill Hanzlit for 22 minutes, watching him score a career-high 14 points. New guard Rudy White, signed the same day, also saw action for Seattle and had six points and three assists in 12 minutes.

Wilkens added White to the team's roster before the game to pick up the slack for the injured Paul Westphal.

clubs history" and who can argue, with a place in the last eight of the competition waiting for the winners.

Newport held Hamrar to a goalless draw on their own ground a fortnight ago, but Ashurst admitted: "That mudbath of a pitch didn't give either side a chance. It will be different this time and both teams will have a chance to play to their full potential."

Newport have hit form since the first leg with nine goals in three victories and Ashurst added: "Everything is bubbling at the club." Transfer listed goalkeeper Gary Plumley was recalled by Newport in place of $40,000 Mark Kendall, the former Tottenham player who is ineligible for the tie. Otherwise Newport field the side that won 4-2 at Blackpool at the weekend.

Final comment from Ashurst was "we are pretty confident, but we will need to be at our best to reach the quarter-finals."

Hamrar were in high spirits when they arrived at Bristol on Monday, having clinched promotion to the First Division on Saturday. English player — manager Dennis Burnett — he will be remembered for his days at Millwall — reckons the team can "spring a surprise."

Newport qualified for Europe by winning the Welsh cup — and they can set a winning trend for English clubs.

West Ham United, who have ruled midfielder Alan Devonshire out for their Cup Winner's Cup trip to Rumania, may introduce an additional defender, Paul Brush, as they try to hold a 5-0 first leg lead against Timisoara.

With Devonshire's ankle injury failing to respond to treatment, there is also a possibility that England midfielder international Trevor Brooking could be recalled after being out for two months with a groin strain.

Ipswich Town, up against Bohemians of Prague in the UEFA Cup, have left behind injured goalkeeper Paul Cooper, England striker Paul Mariner and Dutch midfielder ace, Frans Thijssen.

The club rushed through a visa for 18-year-old goalkeeper Cott Enderby, so that he can be number two to Laurie Sivell.

Steve McCall, who has a badly bruised foot, and Kevin Voette, who has recovered from a strained knee tendon, made the flight, along with inexperienced youngsters Tommy Pacin, Robin Turner and South African Mich D'Aray.

EXCITING: Sanfilippo, the Real Madrid striker, seen pressuring Vargas one of Honved's full backs, in their first leg tie on Oct. 22.

Wimbledon says no to sponsors

WIMBLEDON, England Nov. 4 (AP) — The All-England Tennis Club Monday turned down an offer of one million pounds ($2.42 million) to sponsor the Wimbledon tournament.

The club's chairman, Air Chief Marshal Sir Brian Burnett, rejected the bid without even referring it to his management committee. "It is not something we would consider," he said.

Wimbledon, one of the most flourishing sports events in the world, has always refused to have anything to do with sponsorship. This year it paid out $593,117 in prize money but was still able to hand over $729,000 out of its profits to the funds of the British Lawn Tennis Association.

A spokesman for the would-be sponsors (Lang's Whiskey) said: "Sponsorship at Wimbledon will be up for grabs eventually. It is something worth waiting for and we want to be at the head of the queue."

The British Lawn Tennis Association is still short of money and is considering modifying plans for 1.5 million pounds ($3.6 million dollars) National Training Center.

No problems for Abastillas

Jeddah Open continues

By Laurie Thomas

JEDDAH, Nov. 4 — Rene Abastillas, wearing a pleasant off-white outfit with light brown shoulder contrasts, totally obliterated R. Poschenrieber 6-0 : 6-0 Monday night as the Jeddah Open Tennis tournament singles moved into the fourth round stages.

At the time Poschenrieber didn't really care what anybody was wearing, being too busy trying to make Abastillas break into a run. Abastillas' supporters viciously denied the allegation that Poschenrieber actually succeeded in doing this, although Poschenrieber didn't really care about that either.

Jim Reilly downed K. Negaki 6-1 : 6-1 to move into a quarter final to comment on the rumour that he has "planned a sudden weeks vacation in Kuwait, starting Wed. afternoon."

In fact the Madison/Vallant match was the best of the evening, with both players determined to win and not held back by tension or nerves. Madison moved the ball well from corner to corner in the baseline rallies. Vallant retrieved well and attacked the net when he could (Raytheon are not claiming damages). Some lucky net-cords helped Madison to his 2 set victory 6-2, 7-6.

Completing the fourth round matches, Jim Hagan downed T. Fityani 6-1 6-2 and moves into a quarter final berth with Eric Madison.

In the doubles, Jerry Hunt made his first appearance, teaming up with Bill Mason to give a well executed 6-0 : 6-0 thrashing to Maine and Alam. They could well be set for a final place against Fityani and Dajani.

The doubles continue Tuesday night, as does the semi-finals of the Grand Masters. The singles quarter finals are scheduled for Wednesday night.

Goalscorers

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP) — Leading goalscorers in the English First Division Soccer League:

Gary Shaw, Aston Villa, 10
Gary Birtles, Manchester United, 9
Peter Easter, Everton, 9
Dennis Thompson, Manchester City, 9
John Wark, Ipswich, 9
Frank Worthington, Birmingham, 9

WINNER: Eric Madison, whose strong baseline play brought him success, seen in action against Vallant.

Hunt crashes

LONDON, Nov. 4, (R) — World champion Geoff Hunt of Australia unexpectedly crashed out of the World Masters Squash Tournament in the opening round here Monday.

Hunt, 33, who completed the third successful defence of his world title last month, lost 5-9 10-8 9-3 10-8 to young Egyptian professional Gamal Awad.

The seven-time British Open champion said: "Gamal played well, but I had game balls in the second and fourth. With opportunities like that you should take them."

Hunt took the opening game in 14 minutes and moved 5-1 ahead in the second before Awad, twice winner of the British Amateur crown, stormed back and squared the match.

Awad, 25, roared through the third in nine minutes, then ended Hunt's attempt at staging a typical recovery with a series of superb cross court winners in the fourth game.

Opening lead — two of diamonds.

Obviously, a declarer should avoid a finesse that produces no gain when it succeeds and is expensive when it fails. The principle is self-evident, but the type of hand where it applies is not always easy to recognize.

South was in six hearts and West led a diamond. Declarer finessed the queen, losing to East's king, and later went down one even though the club finesse succeeded. Had South taken the ace of diamonds at trick one, drawn trumps, and taken the club finesse, the outcome would have been altogether different. South's diamond loser would have gone on dummy's fourth club and his only loser would have been a spade trick.

When you think about the matter, it becomes clear that it was the tempting diamond finesse at trick one that led to South's undoing. Actually, the finesse could not help South to make the slam. If West had the king of diamonds, the finesse would win but it would not bring South any closer to home.

Before playing at trick one, South should consider what is required to make the contract. Since a spade loser is unavoidable, it becomes evident that South cannot make the slam unless the club finesse succeeds. It is equally clear that if the club finesse is destined to succeed, South does not need the diamond finesse. The diamond finesse is therefore a futile play. It jeopardizes the slam without improving the chances of making it.

The only time the diamond finesse gains in any form is when West has the king of diamonds and East has the queen of clubs. In that event declarer saves a trick by going down one instead of two, but this is an insignificant factor where a slam is concerned.
